I decided to take a walk to Walmart yesterday since the weather was so good and I needed some groceries that were not too heavy. It is not only dangerous but also very weird to walk to Walmart here in Mena since I am used to sidewalks in Germany. Those do not exist here so if one is walking on the street like me yesterday one has to put one earphone out or turn the music down to make sure that everything can be heard. Also what I experienced was, that even if I didn't here any cars coming and did not see any cars close, I still walked on the very edge of the street to just make sure that in case I do not here a car coming I would be prepared and would not have to move out of the way. I also used my walk yesterday to get my legs loose after a big gym session and also the air feels so much fresher when it is cold around here! It is amazing!
